

ABSTRACT

A frame of a video feed is fitted to a display device. At least one marker is ascertained that defines a region of the frame of the video feed. The region has a horizontal to vertical ratio that matches a horizontal resolution to vertical resolution ratio of the display device. At least one row of the region defined by the at least one marker is buffered. The region of the frame defined by the at least one marker is displayed on the display device.